

MAPS VOLUNTEER TECHNICIANS: We seek motivated, enthusiastic volunteers in good physical condition with a strong desire to learn more about birds and natural history. Positions are available in Yosemite National Park, CA. Our field season begins May 7 and runs through August 8, 2017.

All successful applicants are expected to face the rigors and unpredictability of field conditions with good humor and flexibility. While all volunteer positions include an intensive, two-week training course in mist-netting, and the identification, handling, banding, and ageing and sexing of landbirds, prior banding experience or a background in wildlife biology or a closely related field is recommended. In addition, volunteers receive individual training in these techniques throughout the field season.

Applicants with reliable vehicles are especially needed (trucks/SUVs not required). Mileage will be reimbursed at the rate of $0.37/mile for project-related use. The field crew will be living at a Yosemite campground for the duration of the field season. A per diem of $29 for food and incidental expenses, amounting to $2,320 for the season, are provided. Volunteers are expected to spend a minimum of 6 of every 10 days in the field, contingent upon daily weather conditions and logistical considerations. See below to apply.
